Dear ENC Community,

From New Student Orientation to Commencement, the ENC experience can be characterized by the interaction of unfinished students with an unfinished community. Think about it: when freshmen first arrive on ENC's campus, they're joining a student body that has just sent an entire class of graduating seniors off into the world. In many ways, the college experience of a first-year student is a work in progress; even at the end of the first semester, there are still so many papers left to write, so many late-night conversations yet to be had, and so many other memories yet to be made.

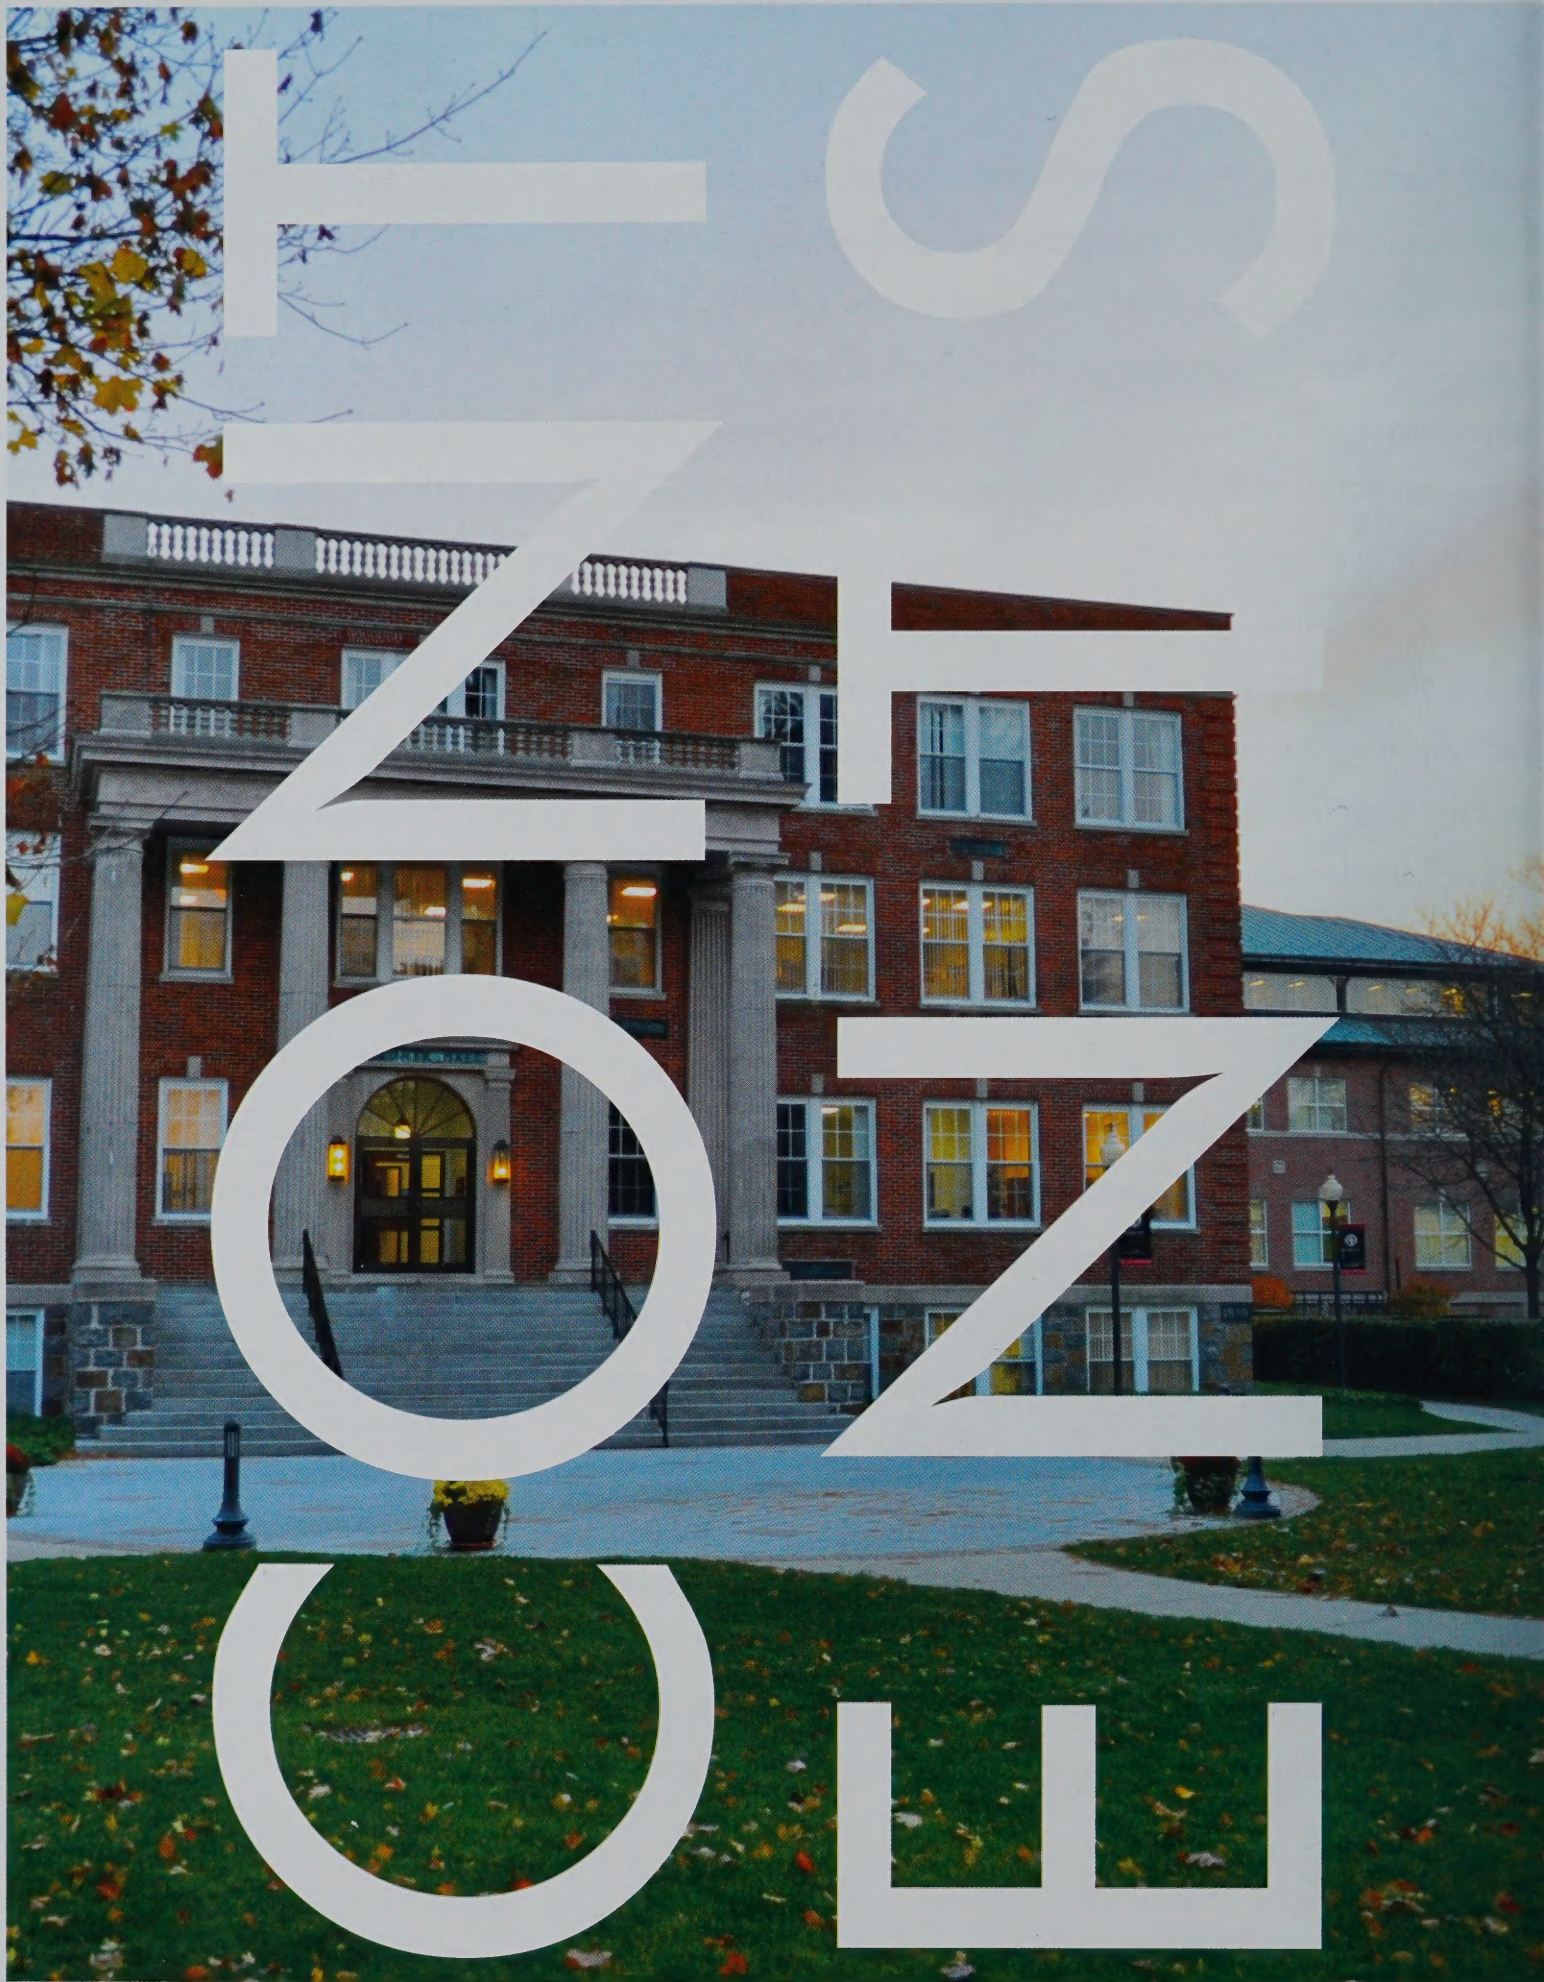

At the same time, ENC's community itself is always in a state of not being finished. Just when we're finally acclimated to a class of students, we realize that they're seniors, that they're graduating, and that they're going to be replaced with a new class of freshmen in the fall. And in the time between when freshmen arrive and when seniors graduate, we're reminded of all the ways in which our community can be better. For our community, the 2016-2017 school year was no different.

When we first received the work that had been done on this edition of Nautilus, we found that it, like new freshmen on ENC's campus and the community that they encounter, was in a state of incompleteness. The 2016-2017 yearbook staff, while still confronted with the challenge of completing their predecessors' edition of Nautilus, invested inestimable effort in this yearbook, and we were honored with the opportunity to finish the job.

Our hope is that anyone who looks through these pages and finds some of their own experiences captured there will be reminded of just how much their time at ENC shaped them. And while the 2016-2017 edition of Nautilus may be finished, the work of telling ENC's story will never be complete.

PRESIDENTIAL LETTER

Dear Seniors,

"To every thing there is a season," Ecclesiastes 3:1 tells us,
"and a time to every purpose under the heaven."

As commencement approaches, the Class of 2017 is indeed entering a new season – a time when you will complete this chapter of your life here at Eastern Nazarene College and continue your journey on the path He has set for you. As you ponder where that path may take you, I hope you will look favorably upon the time you have spent at ENC and all that you have accomplished here.

From academics and athletics to spiritual and cultural endeavors, each one of you has left a mark on ENC and on the hearts of her faculty and staff. As you pass through our gates one final time, please know that mark will not fade but will endure, becoming part of the rich tapestry of lives and experiences that together comprise the history of Eastern Nazarene College.

In some ways, I feel that I, too, am joining you in this new season. For like the Class of 2017, I will also be completing my season here at Eastern Nazarene College at your commencement. So, as we venture forth together into this new season in our lives, please accept my heartfelt thanks for all that you have given me. It has been the greatest honor and privilege of my life to serve as president of Eastern Nazarene College and to have the opportunity to play some small part in each of your stories, all the while knowing that the blessings and rewards I have received from you are far greater than I could ever hope to share with each of you individually.

I congratulate you once again on your graduation and wish you all the blessings and happiness that a life of Christian service can offer.

With love,
President Corlis McGee

YEARBOOK DEDICATION

Dear President McGee,

On Behalf of the Student Body, we would like to dedicate the 2017 Nautilus yearbook to you. Though your past filled with many achievements like being the rector of European Nazarene College in Germany or Paragliding through the Alps, we offer you the opportunity to claim your greatest achievement as being the first female President of Eastern Nazarene College, and of any Nazarene schools in the US, and being the second longest sitting president of 12 years after President Mann. But more importantly regarded is your service to the student body year in and year out. Though we all know your last year here has been filled with a multitude of changes for ENC, many of which we know were far out your control, you have had to be the public face of them and we

Dr. McGee is the Sweetest woman I know. She cares deeply about her students and tries to connect with them in every way possible

You rock! Thank you so much for spending time with us on the #DonutRoadTrip. It made us feel so loved that you would spend time with us... even though we were supposed to be a million miles away from each other. Thank you for being the best President ever!

Thank you for your endless love and care for the ENC students, staff, faculty, and community as a whole. Your smile never fails to brighten up our days. We will miss you dearly and wish you the best of luck!

Corlis!

Thanks for everything you've done for the ENC community! We love you and will miss you! (We'll come visit for donuts in Nashville...

#Donutroadtrip) -Bubba

Dear Dr. McGee,

Thank you so much for your years of service to the ENC community and for your commitment to the idea that the opportunity to receive a college education should be more inclusive for all. Because of your work, ENC will never be the same!

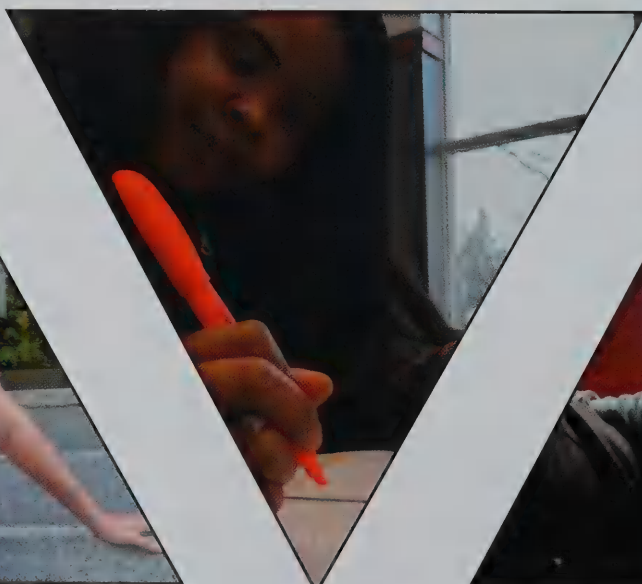

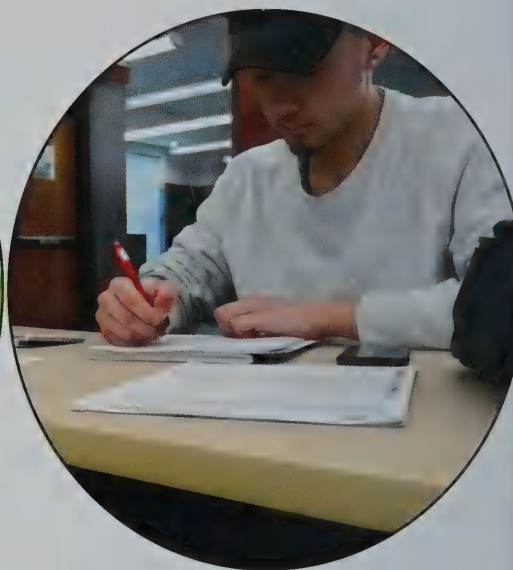

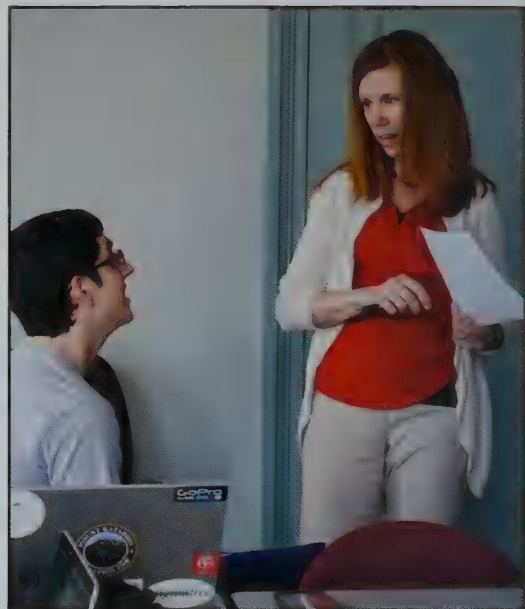

Chris Estep

thank you for your grace. We thank you for your ability to orchestrate responses to students out of care and understanding and always with a listening ear. You have always spoken with poise and elegance. As your last senior, junior, sophomore, and freshman classes here at ENC we deeply thank you for your support and inspiration while we discovered our purpose. You have led with the qualities befitting an ENC President making your predecessors, alumni, graduates, and students proud. There is no doubt that your successor will not be able to fill your shoes, unless Dan Boone has some unknown affinity for squeezing into small heels. You have truly made your mark here at Eastern Nazarene College, and on behalf of the student body and the graduating class of 2017, thank you.

OWN, Transform,

ENC. The place you have found yourself connected to, immersed in, changing with, somewhere after high school and before adulthood. How you came to be here may be a story for the ages or just a fact of life, but you are here. Own it. By now you have come to know every flaw, imperfection, and deterioration, so what will you do? Transform it. Take your time, take it all in and sort the good from the bad, toss the bad and replace it with good. Whatever you can offer, anything at all, bring it to the table. There is room for you at the table, because the table is ever growing. ENC is the past making room at the table, a set apart space, for the future, that future is you. And when the time comes to excuse yourself from the table so that you may go make space for others, leave what you have loved, take what you have learned and...

Freshmen

Freshman year is all about new beginnings. New school, new friends, maybe even new town. New experiences can sometimes be scary and uncomfortable, but like everything in life, they help us grow. This year after much prodding I decided to do some scary and uncomfortable things. I ran for class president, joined cross country, tried out for chapel teams, and a few other things. Each of these new experiences taught me in ways that I never would have thought. Being class president pushed me to be more aware of and involved in the things around me, not only on campus but in the world as a whole. It's important to understand your surroundings to be able to react with wisdom and clarity when the unexpected happens. Cross country taught me to endure and helped me build up the resolve to push through those things that I really (really) don't want to do. Being a part of chapel teams and leading worship helped me work on being a part of the bigger picture without filling the whole frame. Leading worship is not about who can sing the best or how you look while you're up there, but rather about helping cultivate an attitude of praise directed towards our creator. Those things that were once scary and uncomfortable have helped strengthen different areas of my personality, as I'm sure many of this year's freshmen have experienced as well. I encourage each of you to get out of your comfort zone, try new things, and grow.

Sincerely,

OWNING IT - Sophomore year is very different than freshmen year. This year our class has begun to cement our legacy in this generation of ENC. Our class is one of the smaller classes in numbers but we still impact ENC. We no longer are the youngest in the school so we do not have the same pressure of finding who we will be in college but we now are beginning to expand on that and add layers. Our class members now have bigger roles in student government, on their respective sports teams, and involvement. The class of 2019 is growing by taking upper level classes and not just introductory ones anymore. We are the future of ENC, and bridge the gap between the class of 2016 seniors to the class of 2023 freshmen. We are the future and the present of ENC. Sophomores are growing in their experiences of where to study quietly, what to do on a weekend afternoon, and many more hidden secrets of school here that take longer to discover. ENC's mantra is 'Discover your purpose' and as we, the sophomore class, prepare to be upcoming juniors, we get closer each day.

Stories in INK

Shaw Campbell

"So there's a couple of things about this tattoo, there's like a few layers. One, is it's a Celtic cross and my family is Scottish so Celtic crosses are what the crosses look like in both Scotland and Ireland. My Dad always loved the Celtic cross so he has a couple of them hanging in his office and at our church, so they were like always around when I was growing up. Also, the center picture is the Triquetra and the Celtic knot for family, so it symbolizes the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. My dad actually got this part of the tattoo tattooed over his heart the same day that I got my tattoo. I'm a Christian and I believe that no matter what changes with me, the tattoo's permanence reminds me that God will always love me and Jesus will always have died for my sins because that's permanent. I chose the tattoo as a reminder. Lastly, I was considering where to get it, either on my upper arm or my back so that if I were in a work environment I could cover it up, but I decided that I didn't care what other people think because this is who I am and if they have a problem with it, they don't have to hire me."

TJ Vondercheck

"It says 'agape,' which is one of the Greek words for love, but it means specifically unconditional love. I got it on my 18th birthday. I skipped school and went and got that which was fun. For me, it just means love for God - like everlasting love, and I think when I turned 18 was when I got serious about God, so that's what I did. I got a tattoo so then I would forever love God. And I guess that's something. The old ladies at my church didn't like it but oh well, I probably prayed about it for two years and there you have it."

Emily Shuff

"I have no regrets about any of my tattoos. I feel like when I get them, that's what I want, even if later in life it's not what I want. It's more about what I wanted back then. So I have no regrets and that's how I feel about a lot of situations in my life. The reason I got this one was because I've always liked Alice in Wonderland since I was a little kid. It was my favorite movie growing up. I had gone to the tattoo shop not quite sure what I wanted and the guy was asking me what I liked and Alice in Wonderland came up and he loved Alice in Wonderland too. He was like 'Let me draw you a sketch and see if you like it,' and I was like 'Alright!' He drew it and I was like 'That's it,' and so he did it."

Annelise Sherrill

"I got it because I really love Earth and I think it is under-appreciated in how it gives us life. I think a lot of people take for granted everything that it does for us. I feel it is one of the ways to connect to both God and my faith. It's so beautiful how God created the Earth and that constantly reminds me of my faith."

Andrew "Bubba" Snodderly

"I got this tattoo at the end of August right before school started after thinking about it for about four hours. When I got it, the original meaning was that I am who I am because of where I come from. I'm from Maryland and the crab is a symbol of Maryland, but it wasn't a tattoo for Maryland. It was a tattoo that would remind me that all of my circumstances that I've been through have helped make me who I am today. That was my original meaning when I got it, but honestly after a while I thought that was really stupid. So long story short, I was at my aunt's house and she was talking about crabs and about how they're bottom feeders but yet so beautiful at the same time. I felt a sort of divine intervention that my tattoo doesn't mean what I thought it meant. Now it means something totally different and God gave me a new meaning for it. Even though crabs are bottom feeders at the bottom of the food chain, they are still wanted and desired by everyone. In my life I've struggled with feelings of not being wanted, abandonment, and loneliness. So the tattoo took on the new meaning of when I'm feeling down or alone, I'm still a desired creation of God."

Noelle Rudeen

"I had been wanting a tattoo for a while and one day I went to breakfast with some friends and they were like, 'We're gonna get tattoos today.' And so I was like, 'Well I don't know if I'm ready to get the real tattoo that I want.' So spur of the moment I said, 'Sure I'll get a tattoo today.' I didn't know what I was gonna get and so they were like, 'Just look up some cool hipster hieroglyphic thing or something.' So I looked up Egyptian hieroglyphics online and they were small and they were all kind of triangle looking and I was like, 'Oh my gosh, am I seriously getting a tattoo today?' I didn't think I'd do it, but kind of did. So I looked it up and found a bunch of different ones, and this one represented transition. For my life and where I was at, I was like 'Ya know, it's kind of a good thing, like I'm still transitioning in my life, I still have some growing to do, I know that God's not done with me so no matter what point I am in in my life looking at that is gonna be a good thing to know that I am still changing and growing and college is that time.' So I got a tattoo about three hours later the same day after having decided to get it earlier that day and that was my first tattoo...no regrets."

David Frye

"My tattoo has many meanings. First off, my grandpa loved lighthouses and he use to have them around all the time. It's a cool reminder of him in a way, because he's the first person who showed me what a lighthouse was. Second, there is a light bulb. As an electrical engineering student, light bulbs are something we study. So it's symbolic of what I study. Third, a lighthouse is something that is used to help ships find their way back to shore. It helps lost ships find their way back home. No matter how far we stray off as Christians, Jesus is always there to help lead us back home. He shines his light and we find our way. Lastly, this past summer I traveled on a Summer Ministry team called Foreign Light. We chose that name because we wanted to be this light to the world that seems so foreign nowadays because of all the sin. So that darkness around my tattoo represents that darkness of this world. It also, in regards to summer min, represents this experience I had of changing people's lives through playing music. I made a huge difference in many people's lives and I will always remember."

makes all the difference in your life."

JUNIORS

TRANSFORM IT - though mysterious, demanding, and admittedly confusing most of the time - is unquestionably one of the most beautiful ways in which God reveals Himself to us here on Earth. I am left awestruck when I regale the practices of my younger self compared to what I have been willingly molded into today. I am filled to the utmost brim with a certain infectious joy when I watch a loved one thriving, persevering, and rising above rough waters in the name of Jesus. Though desperate in the midst of hopelessness, weak and weary in the face of obstacle, or doubtful within the questions, we manage somehow to grow into something unimaginably better than what we ever thought possible.

And that's all God.

Junior year may be underestimated. We are perhaps tired, busy, overwhelmed, and sometimes uncomfortable. Still, we have journeyed so far. Though the future is uncertain I, for one, am humbled and indebted to my God for naming me flawless daily, for never leaving my side, and for using all - not just some - of life's endeavors for His good and perfect will. I am addicted to the ways He has truly, slowly, and steadily been transforming me into who He's imagined I'd be since before I was even in existence.

Juniors - let us rejoice and welcome these transformations with trusting hearts. For our futures are out of our hands, and in much better ones. For we have all survived 100% of our bad days, and tomorrow is a brand new one. I have to say, friends, from where I'm standing - life, while messy, looks pretty good from here.

You are loved,

SENIORS

"Be fearless in the pursuit of what sets your soul on fire."

REMEMBER IT - Senior year is one of the last things on your mind when you first arrive to Eastern Nazarene. Initially you are filled with excitement to take on this new journey in your life. Your college career begins with nostalgic memories of the past, such as freshmen year where you met your entire class at the back to school bash, going to the Clam Box and hanging around Wolly Beach playing music, soaking in your newfound independence that you've earned, that came with a curfew for freshman. Sophomore year is where we became accustomed to the college life, proud to show off our school spirit, supporting every sports team, and familiarizing ourselves with the great bean town up the road (dat wayyy). To finding ourselves celebrating Boston's Red Sox victory in the World Series. Junior year was the shift we first felt, however a shift we somewhat loved because we were now upper classmen. The shift was also bittersweet because it signified that we'll be leaving ENC next year. As a result, junior year included an abundance of work assigned by professors. And as always, we accepted that challenge, whether it meant staying up all night, waking up before class to finish those assignments, or going to the library where you were reminded that you had 3 minutes until closing. Senior year was the most anticipated, but the year we least prepared for emotionally. In all, it is a proud yet bittersweet achievement. With graduation around the corner, knowing that we'll be leaving this amazing Wifi behind, a mixture of feelings begin to arise. We wonder about what's next? And how do we say goodbye? Will we see each other again? Don't worry, we have been preparing for what's next, we have proven not just to ourselves, family, and professors but to others we are capable of achieving what some may consider as the unknown, and with effort, commitment and discipline we'll continue to rise. Moreover, as we say goodbye we'll walk away with a ton of memories that'll last forever. Thank you, Eastern Nazarene College and Class of 2017.

Although our season has just begun, it has been such a joy for us to watch each one of you grow and develop into strong, determined, independent women. From the 5am practices at the Y to team bonding nights in Florida, the enthusiasm and energy you bring to the field and to us is second to none. Thank you for all of the effort you have put into this team and for helping make the culture of ENC softball stronger every day. You continue to represent this program and ENC in a positive light, and serve as role models for those around you. The most important thing we want you to know is how proud we are of you. You inspire us every day. Continue to love the game and each other and only big things are ahead for you all. This is only the beginning. We love you!

-Coach Bishop & Coach Janelle

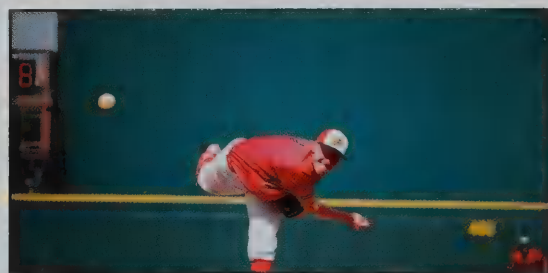

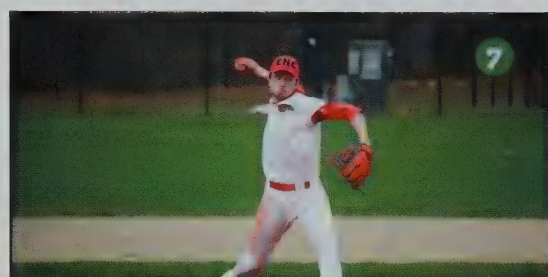

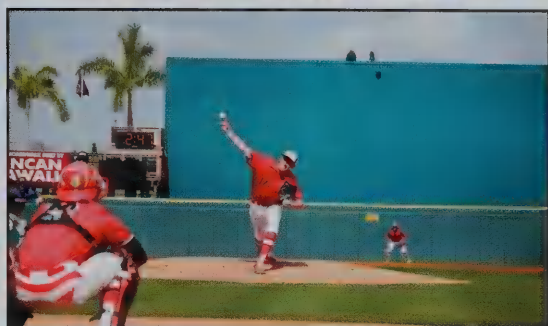

"When I first stepped onto campus in the fall of 2016, I was unaware of what to expect as a new, first-year head coach. Basically, in my mind I was thinking, 'What have I gotten myself into this time?' However, that thought was erased as soon as I stepped in front of the baseball team for the first time. Then it changed to, 'Run away as quickly as you can!' Shabang!

Honestly though, I could not have asked for a better welcome from this group of guys. Right from the beginning I felt at home, and knew we were going to have a special year together. Every single day they bring me joy, when they're playing 44 before practice, hitting in the cage, doing pitching drills, and yes, even when they're doing ten more push-ups...

This team is special, because they will forever be my first team as a head coach, and I wouldn't have it any other way.

Women's Basketball

We could not be more proud of what this special group of young women accomplished this year. They are not only talented basketball players but they are genuine, selfless, caring individuals. We enjoyed one of the most successful basketball seasons in recent years and it was fun to watch them develop and come together not just as a team, but as a family. I am especially proud of our two seniors, who lead us both on and off the court. These two committed whole-heartedly to our program and to ENC and their work ethic raised the bar for women's basketball here.

While I am very excited to have made it to the semi-finals of our Conference Tournament and to have finished 18-9, I will always be more proud of the way our team members represent our team and our school. They are a goofy bunch and I wouldn't trade them for anything!

ENC Golf

It was a year of firsts for the 2016-2017 men's golf team. We were able to golf in a home match for the first time in program history. We also hosted the official Commonwealth Coast Conference Qualifier match for the first time. We established a new home golf course at South Shore Country Club. All of these events were exciting, but what I am most proud of was the commitment the team made to improve this year. They were asked to put more time and practice in than they had been prior to this year. It was exciting to see each member of the team improve throughout the year in their individual way. Their overall commitment and energy was motivating and I believe we have begun to build in a way that will just keep getting better. I was thrilled at the opportunity to help out the team, but I am even more thrilled to see what is in store for their future. Connor, Andrew, Will, Rob, Caleb, and Briley – Thank you for all of your efforts this year and I hope you had as much fun as I did!

2016-2017 Sports Seasons

When I think of the 2016-2017 sports season there are several memories that come to my mind. One of them is Ian Carson scoring the golden goal against Curry to catapult Men's Soccer into the playoffs, or Women's Volleyball starting off their season by sweeping two teams in a tri-match. Christian Lynch joined his brother Eric on the banner, and scored his 1000th career point against Curry College. Seniors Lexi Schmidt (ENC Women's Soccer) and Jess Franco (ENC Women's Basketball) both sustained season ending injuries before their last season as athletes for ENC (broken clavicle, and torn knee ligaments, respectively). At the beginning of the soccer team's senior night, Lexi got to kick off the ball to start the game. At the beginning of the basketball team's senior night, Jess got to score her final layup as a Lion before being subbed out. Another great memory is when the Men's Volleyball kicked off their inaugural season by coming back from a 0-2 set deficit to win in their first ever match as a team. Men's Tennis (Let's go Dawgs!) had a phenomenal season, making it all the way to the CCC championship match. There are countless, more exciting plays and moments from this past year of sports, but as a fan and a fellow student, I want to say thank you. Thank you to every student-athlete who represents our school. Thank you for all your hard work during off-season trainings. Being an athlete can be very humbling, so thank you for what you do for ENC.

To the team,

I want you all to look back on this season for what it taught you. I know many scenarios did not go our way, but I was proud to see the determination each one of you is showing to make this team into the team you all know it can be, both on and off the field. I loved having the chance to coach you and seeing the eagerness you all have to learn the game.

To our seniors, thank you for setting a standard of leadership, sacrifice, and excellence. The foundation has been set by you to move forward in defining our program.

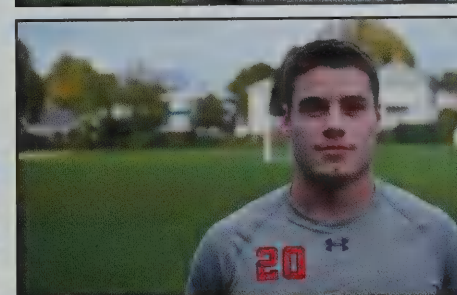

Love,
Coach Emma

2016 Men's Soccer Team,

The 2016 season wasn't just about wins and losses, it was about a group of guys striving every day to be the best they could possibly be. The team started strong with a 5-3-1 record with big wins against Lesley, Wheelock, Green Mountain, Pine Manor and UNE. As the season wore on, injuries beset the team but strides of improvement were still definitely made. Two key achievements for the 2016 team was winning 2 games in the Conference and advancing in to the playoffs. Elly Buford's 2 goals vs. UNE and Ian Carson's overtime goal vs. Curry will forever be etched in my memory as I look back at my first season as their coach. This team also made history when they hosted our first Night of Nets game vs. Nichols. The team sold shirts and the profits went to the purchase of malaria bed nets for a community in Zambia. Of course a huge thanks goes out to the seniors, Pete Ostergren, Ian Carson, Jameson MacFarland, Elly Buford, Jacob Mason and Dave Eddings. Despite their circumstances, they helped set the program in a new direction.

2016-2017 Men's and Women's Track-and-Field Team,

The motto that was echoed throughout the 2016-2017 Track-and-Field Season was One Team, One Dream. The inaugural year for Track-and-Field was not only full of celebratory moments but also humbling, learning moments. As a team, we were the new kids on the block, but no one, neither the athletes nor the coaches, had this mentality at practice or at our track meets. The team showed up and proved time and time again we had what it took to win both as individuals and as a team. Hard work, humility, and desire to grow lead to a successful inaugural season. It has been a blessing as an assistant coach to observe the growth of individual athletes and the team. Thank you team for overcoming any obstacle that could have blocked The Dream. As we continue to grow the program and strive forward, you have set a solid foundation. One Team, One Dream!

Blessings,

Assistant Coach Christina Saint-Pierre

Women's Volleyball

Coming into this season I wasn't entirely sure what to expect. I knew that the year was going to be a year of transition and growth. What most people do not know is that I took this team and changed everything they once had known. It was a risk in doing this, but the response was extremely well received and rewarding. Indeed, it was a year of transition and with transition there is an opportunity for frustration to become present. However, I am proud to say that these young women turned frustration into determination. We fought through many battles during this season, some mental and some physical, and because of their commitment, we came out on top of them! I honestly couldn't be more proud of this group of young women.

I also want to say a special thanks to our seniors, Joanna Joseph and Vannessa Ebai. Both of you had different leadership styles and different roles on the team, but each played a huge role in our team. As your coach, I am extremely honored to have had the privileged to be you coach in your senior year.

Coach Hewitt

What a year it has been! I couldn't be more proud of this team and the hard work they have shown during this past season. Thinking back to the start of our journey together, which was back in October, we started with a group of individuals learning the complexity of the sport and learning what it meant to be apart of a program. The word for our season was PROGRESS. Each and everyday we were working to improve our skills and our ability to compete. Looking back on the season, I think the moment that stands out to me most as a coach was when we beat Newbury in 5. It was the first match of the season and I did not know how the guys were going to respond to a match, let alone a conference match that went 5 sets! I was impressed with our composure in a tough match as well as our ability to compete and win.

I want to thank the members of this team for committing to something bigger than themselves. Being a collegiate athlete takes a lot of time, energy, and sacrifice. Our coaching staff would like to thank our athletes for all the work you have done to improve. We are so proud of the young men that you are, and we greatly looking forward to see where life takes each of you!

Words from the Project Manager

- McKenzie Blake

It was an honor to be presented with the opportunity for this global project management internship. Traveling to Costa Rica with all these amazing people and being able to experience the culture up close was indescribable. Everything our group was able to participate in was unforgettable. We hiked a mountain, slept outside, cliff dove (let us never forget...), learned how a fair-trade coffee farm functions, and so much more. The best part, however, was being able to do this all together.
